

For years I received unwanted solicitations from telemarketers. They call at all hours even when you request that they remove you from their call lists. When you would ask them to stop calling they would often become rude and abusive--when they are calling me to try and get me to buy something!!! When the Do Not Call list was formed I was one of the first to sign up. I will never, repeat never buy anything over the telephone and I believe I have the right not to be disturbed by these people at my home. Unless you are willing to change the law so that telemarketers are required to give me their home telephone numbers so I can disturb them at home, you must not change the laws in NJ. This is my home and these people have no right to come into it and bother me!
